In Their Own Words: Kathy Brandt and Kim Acquaviva, PhD

In January 2019, Kathy Brandt, a nationally known hospice industry leader, was diagnosed with metastatic ovarian cancer and learned she had mere months to live. Brandt opted for palliative care, forgoing treatments such as chemotherapy or radiation, in order to spend as much quality time as possible with her wife, Kim Acquaviva, PhD, and their 19 year old son. In this video, Brandt and Acquaviva, a nursing professor and end-of-life care expert, discuss their decision and the benefits of palliative care.

The Conversation Project Toolkit

theconversationproject.org/starter-kit/intro/

Resources and discussion guide for people who want to talk with their loved ones about end-of-life wishes (available in multiple languages).

Go Wish Game

<http://www.gowish.org/>

Go Wish gives you an easy, even entertaining way to talk about what is most important to you. The cards help you find words to talk about what is important if you were to be living a life that may be shortened by serious illness. Playing the game with your relatives or best friends can help you learn how you can best comfort your loved ones when they need you most. Go Wish can be played by one, two or more people.

Each deck has 36 cards. Thirty-five of the cards describe things that people often say are important when they are very sick or dying. The cards describe how people want to be treated, who they want near them, and what matters to them. One card is a "wild card." You can use this card to stand for something you want that isn't on any of the other cards.

Growth House

<http://www.growthhouse.org/>

Growth House, Inc., gives you free access to over 4,000 pages of high-quality education materials about end-of-life care, palliative medicine, and hospice care, including the full text of several books. We provide education both for the general public and for health care professionals.

Heart to Heart

<https://www.discussdirectives.com/heart2hearts-acp.html>

"How do I start a conversation about my end-of-life healthcare wishes?" "This is really uncomfortable." "What should I say?" These questions were asked over and over again by patients. As a result, the Heart2Hearts® deck of cards were invented in order to provide 52 conversation starters.

Hello Game

<https://commonpractice.com/products/hello-game>

Hello is a conversation game. It's the easy, non-threatening way to start a conversation with your family and friends about what matters most to you.

Post-MSW Medical Center-Based Fellowships

PROGRAM	DESCRIPTION
Harvard Medical School, Center for Palliative Care	Pediatric Palliative Care Fellowship Pediatric Advanced Care Team (PACT), the pediatric palliative care service at Boston Children’s Hospital and the Dana Farber Cancer Institute, is offering a full-time, year-long social work fellowship. PACT is an inter-professional team that supports the treatment of underlying illness while maximizing the quality of life in children with serious medical conditions. Through a family-centered approach PACT promotes healing, comfort and making childhood experiences meaningful. The team includes physicians, nurse practitioners and social workers and works closely with chaplains, communication specialists, psychologists, child life specialists, social workers, etc. As the premier Pediatric Palliative Care Social Work Fellowship in the country, this training program provides the opportunity to participate in an intensive clinical and didactic training experience. The fellow will work closely with our Medical and Nurse Practitioner fellows and will receive social work specific and inter-professional palliative care training. The fellow will have the opportunity to work with patients and their families as well as facilitate and administer the PACT bereavement program. This includes facilitating and administering a parent/sibling bereavement group. There will be opportunities to gain knowledge and experience with related community resources, hospice and bereavement services. PACT provides inpatient and outpatient care as well as support in the community and home settings. The fellow functions as part of an inter-professional team and is responsible for consultation with other medical providers. The fellowship experience includes academic responsibilities such as grand rounds and a quality improvement project. Fellows receive two hours of supervision per week. The fellow will have the opportunity to attend PACT educational rounds featuring inter-professional experts in the field of Pediatric Palliative Care and will participate in the Harvard Medical School Inter-Professional Palliative Care Fellowship Program. All social work fellows at Children's participate in didactic seminars and a fellows’ discussion group. This is an opportunity to work with one of the first pediatric palliative care teams in the country. Compensation is full-time salary plus benefits. Fellowship begins July 1, and ends June 30. http://www.childrenshospital.org/clinician-resources/education-and-training/social-work-training-program/social-work-fellowships

Palliative Care Social Work Fellowship

Our interprofessional palliative training program offers a one-year program (July-June) in which a social work fellow has the unique opportunity to engage in interprofessional education alongside three physician fellows and one nurse practitioner fellow, sharing didactic and workshop experiences and partnering for clinical visits.

By the end of the year, the Social Work Fellow will demonstrate competency in a number of domains, including but not limited to:

- Grief, loss, and bereavement support
- Advance care planning
- Spiritual, religious, existential and cultural aspects of care
- Assessing and treating for total pain
- Assessing and completing comprehensive psychosocial assessments

Program Highlights:

- Unique interprofessional curriculum taught by expert palliative care faculty
- Accelerated development of evidence-based clinical competences with a high degree of supervised independence
- Structured training and mentorship from experienced palliative care clinicians, including four social workers
- Clinical Supervision for licensing
- Clinical rotations across hospice and palliative care settings
- Preparation to sit for the Advanced Palliative Hospice Social Worker – Certified exam
- Stipend and benefits provided

Benefits of Program:

- Comprehensive training and practice in a wide range of palliative settings. Fellows will have the background to pursue practice in a variety of types of palliative care.
- Palliative care is an interdisciplinary discipline. This is a rare opportunity to train in an interdisciplinary fellowship.
- Fellows will develop and conduct research in a supervised setting, acquiring academic in addition to clinical experience.
- Over the course of the year, fellows will develop increasing independence in their practice in a large, vibrant, urban hospital. The experience will have a breadth and depth that will fully prepare fellows for a career in palliative care social work.

Education and Licensure Requirements:

- Master's degree from an accredited social work school
- Active Washington, D.C. Social Work license or eligibility to obtain D.C. license at time of offer

Application Requirements:

Department of Veterans Affairs

Interprofessional Fellowships in Palliative Care

Department of Veterans Affairs is offering one-year fellowships in palliative care at six sites in 2002. Beginning between July and September 2002, each of the six training sites will be selecting up to four 1-year (or the equivalent) fellows / trainees. At least one, and no more than two of these fellows may be a physician at each of the sites. Each selected site will select one to three associated health (non-physician) fellow/trainee positions in disciplines involved in the practice of palliative care, e.g. nursing, social work, pharmacy, psychology and chaplaincy. The training for associated health disciplines may be for a period of 1-year or less depending on the discipline and the curriculum plan.

The purpose of this VA fellowship program is to develop leaders with vision, knowledge, and commitment to lead palliative care into the 21st century as well as to increase recruitment and retention of these specialists for the Veterans Health Administration. There is no obligation to work for VA after completion of the program. Annual salary varies by site and discipline

- National network of six Interprofessional Palliative Care Fellowship programs was funded in 2002 by the Department of Veterans Affairs
- Provides advanced training in hospice and palliative care to social workers, physicians, nurses, psychologists, chaplains and pharmacists
- Eligibility: Master's Prepared Social Workers from a CSWE accredited program

Detailed description of Bronx VA Fellowship	Social Work Interprofessional Palliative Care Fellowship Opportunity The James J. Peters Veterans Affairs Medical Center Geriatrics Research, Education and Clinical Center located in the Bronx, NY, is recruiting for a masters-prepared social worker interested in a one-year fellowship in palliative and end-of-life care for the period July 1, 2021 to June 30, 2022. The Interprofessional Palliative Care Fellowship Program is one of several fellowship programs in the US sponsored by the Department of Veterans Affairs with the goal of preparing future leaders in palliative and end of life care. Established in 2001, we are now training our 18th cohort of Fellows and have 68 graduates in the fields of social work, nurse practitioner, medicine, pharmacy and psychology. We are currently approved for two physician ACGME accredited fellowship lines and three associated health lines (nurse practitioner, pharmacy and social work). The fellowship is an intensive clinical training experience consisting of rotations at James J. Peters VAMC, VNSNY Hospice, Elizabeth Seton Pediatric Center, and Mount Sinai Hospital's Hertzberg Palliative Care Institute. Fellows are exposed to patient centered team-based care in a number of settings, including inpatient palliative care consultation teams, hospice, outpatient clinics and the home. Elective opportunities are available at James J. Peters VAMC and other VA facilities. Classroom learning includes a weekly academic day in conjunction with our parent academic department, the Brookdale Department of Geriatrics and Palliative Medicine, Mount Sinai Medical Center. This consists of a seminar series, journal club, Grand Rounds, and a multi-component leadership track. Other educational programs include funding for the Mount Sinai Intensive Update with Board Review in Geriatrics and Palliative Medicine CME Course. The fellowship's leadership activities include four weeks devoted to a mentored research project, teaching opportunities, a quality improvement project, and a project to develop advocacy skills in palliative care program development. Our graduates have gone on to work in a range of palliative care and hospice settings within and outside the VA throughout the US. Candidates for the fellowship must have completed their MSW degree at an accredited US school of social work by May 2021. We would appreciate it if you would circulate this email to your colleagues or students and post as appropriate. Interested individuals should email Valerie Menocal, BS, Fellowship Coordinator, at valerie.menocal@va.gov, with a resume attached, by Monday, March 1, 2021. Judith L. Operation Ohana – Helping Families Through Cancer

<https://operationohana.org/>

Operation Ohana provides young cancer survivors who are parents of small children with a safe space for individual and familial healing, recovery, and reconnection. We do this through family-focused retreats, survivor “matchmaking,” and connecting families with needed support and children’s therapy resources.

We focus on young parents and guardians caring for young children at the time of diagnosis, including those diagnosed during pregnancy.

Lifetimes is a moving book for children of all ages, even parents too. It lets us explain life and death in a sensitive, caring, beautiful way. Lifetimes tells us about beginnings. And about endings. And about living in between. With large, wonderful illustrations, it tells about plants. About animals. About people. It tells that dying is as much a part of living as being born. It helps us to remember. It helps us to understand.

Self-Care

Self-Care Starter Kit

“The Self-Care Starter KitSM was initially developed for UB Social Work students, but it is our hope that these resources will be useful for students and professionals alike. Although the kit does not address all that goes into developing the skills of self-care, it does begin the journey.”

MedPal-CNN

MedPal–CNN is an educational tool oriented towards healthcare professionals who care for pediatric patients who have already been diagnosed with a condition that could benefit from PPC. The app is designed to help professionals learn more about PPC and to connect them to diverse resources to learn about management approaches for previously diagnosed conditions. This app is not a diagnostic or treatment tool.

Palliative Care Fast Facts

Palliative Fast Facts is the official mobile version of the Fast Facts database, the de facto quick reference for palliative care providers. This app works without an internet connection and is designed to be useful in a clinical setting. Convenience and customization are key--browse the Facts Facts database by search, chronology, or subject; share and bookmark articles that are particularly useful; adjust the text size, background, and font color. The Palliative Fast Facts for Android application was created by Haipeng (Mark) Zhang D.O. at Dana Farber Cancer Institute and Jess Smith (<http://jesskinchen.com/>) at the University of Florida.

The Art of Dying

2009

21 Minutes

Director and Producer: Matthew Hill

"In an intimate and moving documentary, art historian Dan Cruickshank confronts the unavoidable issue of his own certain death, whether soon or far in the future. His mission, in this largely secular age, is to see if art can offer either comfort or explanation in the face of the greatest unknown of all. Confronting death on both an emotional and an intellectual level, Dan relives the sense of loss of close family - his father and grandfather, and the future death of his only child - while also exploring how death has been dealt with through the ages."

eMOLST Overview

eMOLST is a web-based version of the current paper-based New York State Department of Health-5003 MOLST form. By moving the MOLST form to a readily accessible electronic format, health care providers, including EMS, can have access to MOLST forms at all sites of care including hospitals, nursing homes and the community. In the long term the eMOLST application and registry should become a statewide service by leveraging connections with SHIN-NY.

A Dignified End

Produced by Journey Man Productions.

"Obbe Terpstra is 86. He has no terminal illness but his quality of life is deteriorating, he wants to die in a dignified way. This exclusive report follows him as he prepares to commit suicide. 'I want to die. I am not allowed but I want to', states Obbe Terpstra. He watched his wife die of cancer and doesn't want to end up like that. But helping someone commit suicide is a criminal offence. His son, Albert, knows of his plans but hasn't been involved with the preparations. 'He doesn't want us to see him as a drooling old man. He wants us to remember him as he is now.' A month later, Obbe swallows barbiturates. 'He was extremely happy. The atmosphere was like a birthday party,' recalls Albert. By sharing their story, Albert and Obbe hope they will re-open the debate on euthanasia."

Dying Wish

Produced by: Karen van Vuuren & Francesca Nicosia, Dying Wish Media.

Directed by: Karen van Vuuren.

"Michael's "dying wish" was to show others that what is called 'patient refusal of nutrition and hydration' resulted in a gentle death. His own research showed relatively little information on stopping drinking and eating at the end of a terminal illness. What little research he found indicated a more humane end. Michael wanted to dispel common misconceptions that the dying person feels hunger and thirst once they choose this very natural route to an expected death."

End of Life Wishes

5 Minutes

“Nila J. Webster was diagnosed with stage 4 lung cancer in July 2010. In this video she addresses all types of planning for the end of life, ranging from decisions about complex medical treatments, to completion of a health care proxy, to the notes she has written in advance to family and loved ones. She also covers the practical issues, such as who will care for her cat and which realtor is prepared to sell her house. Nila's attention to every detail gives her peace of mind and ensures that both she and her family will be supported through the end of her life. Nila also speaks about the value of compassionate care in the medical setting. She has recognized that the value of open communication between physicians, patients, and caregivers is in itself palliative. Since her diagnosis, Nila has been invited to be on the faculty of the CME Resiliency Conference sponsored by the Benson-Henry Institute for Mind Body Medicine at Massachusetts General Hospital, where she has spoken about the value of compassionate care. She has also written of her experiences for several peer-reviewed journals, including the Annals of Internal Medicine.”

“This documentary is a view into the daily dilemmas that occur in an ICU as doctors, patients, and families face the inevitability of death, though they realize it at different time. It’s a fascinating conversation to watch, as any viewers will inevitably realize that they’ll face the same conversations themselves at some point. Nothing can truly prepare anyone for that, but this documentary is a good place to start the conversation.”

Faces of Palliative Care

7-21-14

45.20 minutes

"Many of us will spend the final days of our lives in palliative care -- but many Canadians are unsure about what palliative care really is. Two years in the making, this moving documentary provides a window into the world of palliative care through the stories of the people who live and die there and the dedicated medical staff who provide care and support. The documentary was produced for the University of British Columbia Faculty of Medicine, Department of Family Practice by Media Services at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver, Canada and was shot at a number of different palliative care facilities in that city. "Faces of Palliative Care" shows that today, with new drugs and a collaborative approach to care, palliative care programs can provide comfortable and meaningful end of life experiences for patients and their families.

Final Call

Produced by: Journey Man Productions.

"I do not want to be locked up in a nursing home where all you get is bingo and sing-songs", states Ruth Mackinnon. Doctors worry that the popularity of the right to death movement reflects a growing view that to be old and in need of care is to lack dignity and be a burden.... Thanks to medical advances, people can now live on for years after a stroke or heart-attack. Is it naïve and patronizing to discount the feelings of those who choose death over dependency on others? Or will condoning suicide simply create more stigma about aging and lead to people being pressured to kill themselves? As the population of the Western world ages, the euthanasia debate can only get more topical."

A Good Death

45 Minutes

Produced by: Journey Man Productions.

"What do you do when you're told you're going to die? In this heart-rending documentary four Australians face this very question, as they search for that elusive good death. 'I mean we talk about the journey of life ... Well what about the journey of death?' asks one terminally ill patient. Unfortunately, while so often this journey begins with defiance, the sad reality is that modern death is becoming increasingly drawn out and long suffering often overwhelms people. Palliative care centers like Sacred Heart aim to make this journey easier and provide relief from the pain that usually comes with being terminally ill. But the battle is not against pain alone. In modern society people are reluctant to accept death as a part of life. 'We want to look after them. We want to cure them ... we've set up a situation where it's difficult to die peacefully.' Yet palliative care remains under-funded - it appears helping people die a 'good death' is a service society doesn't recognize."

Griefwalker

70 minutes

Director: Stephen Jenkinson

"This documentary introduces us to Stephen Jenkinson, once the leader of a palliative care counselling team at Toronto's Mount Sinai Hospital. Through his daytime job, he has been at the deathbed of well over 1,000 people. What he sees over and over, he says, is "a wretched anxiety and an existential terror" even when there is no pain. Indicting the practice of palliative care itself, he has made it his life's mission to change the way we die - to turn the act of dying from denial and resistance into an essential part of life."

How Doctors Tell Their Patients They're Dying

2015

5 Minutes

Producer: Frontline

"Doctors who need to break the worst possible news to patients don't just have to overcome their own discomfort about talking about death. They must also overcome the fact that some patients and loved ones aren't prepared to accept the news.

"Frequently, as an emergency surgeon, I'm meeting somebody for the first time and they have no idea they could die from their disease," explains Dr. Zara Cooper, an emergency surgeon with palliative care training. One of her patients at Brigham and Women's Hospital in Boston, Clyde Earle, had been undergoing treatment for advanced cancer for a year. He and his newlywed wife, Audrey, believed he had many more months to live, but it soon became clear he did not. Cooper started the end-of-life conversation. But as Earle's condition worsened, she brought in Dr. Kathy Selvaggi, a senior palliative care physician who specializes in helping patients who are near death. Our short film, below, shows how Selvaggi was able to gently but clearly convey to Audrey that her husband would not be able to leave the hospital. It offers a rare look at how physicians like Selvaggi manage to convey painful truths. "It is a process," said Selvaggi. "And I think it is very hard to come to the realization that you're dying."

How to Die in Oregon

108 minutes

Director: Peter Richardson

"In 1994, Oregon became the first state to legalize physician-assisted suicide. As a result, any individual whom two physicians diagnose as having less than six months to live can lawfully request a fatal dose of barbiturate to end his or her life. Since 1994, more than 500 Oregonians have taken their mortality into their own hands. In How to Die in Oregon, filmmaker Peter Richardson gently enters the lives of the terminally ill as they consider whether – and when – to end their lives by lethal overdose. Richardson examines both sides of this complex, emotionally charged issue. What emerges is a life-affirming, staggeringly powerful portrait of what it means to die with dignity."

Delivering difficult news to a Veteran is never easy —especially in matters of life and death. Many providers may not have been taught how to handle these delicate conversations. Learning a strategy on how to have such a conversation can help deliver information accurately and compassionately. This training demonstrates how to deliver difficult news with compassion. We recommend using an approach that follows the acronym: S-P-I-K-E-S., which stands for "Setting", "Perception", "Invitation", "Knowledge", "Empathy" and "Strategy". In this program, you will watch a physician use the SPIKES protocol with a Veteran nearing the end of her life.

In the End

Produced by: Screen Australia. State Government Of Victoria.

Directed by: Charlotte Roseby

"Old people used to die at home, surrounded by their loved ones. Now they are ending up in intensive care, connected to machines and surrounded by strangers. Intensive Care specialist Dr. Charlie Corke is committed to give his elderly patients every chance to get better, but he knows that sometimes the treatment is only lengthening the dying process, causing discomfort and distress. This documentary takes us on a journey of a doctor who is trying to balance his own enthusiasm for medical technology with an acceptance that, after a long and healthy life, it's OK to go. 'In the End' is a beautiful and profound film that follows the journey of patients, their families and their doctor dealing with a modern-day dilemma of our own making. "What makes it so distressing, says Dr Charlie Corke, a senior specialist working in intensive care, is that it takes an immense amount of invasive technology to try and support someone's failed organs. Not just a neat little intravenous drip, but an array of suction tubes, catheters, feeding tubes and breathing tubes surgically inserted. It can also mean sedating patients and tying their wrists to the bed to make sure that in their confusion they don't pull out all the tubes...Charlie certainly doesn't believe in denying anyone treatment, but he asks: 'Just because we have the diagnostic and therapeutic options available, should we always use them?' Individuals battling end-stage disease reflect on how they want to live their final weeks in The Last Chapter: End of Life Decisions. The one-hour program examines end-of-life care options and the need for advance directives including a living will.

Last Rights: Facing End-Of-Life Choices

Produced by: Karen Cantor, Chris Gavin. Singing Wolf Documentaries.

" 'Last Rights: Facing End-of-Life Choices,' features physician, Scott Nelson, MD from Cleveland, MS, whose own father, Elbert Nelson, had suffered a terminal illness narrates the film. Relatives of the other three main characters tell their stories about the now-deceased patients: Merian Frederick, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, who was succumbing to Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis (ALS), an incurable and fatal disease; Peggy Sutherland in Oregon, terminally ill with lung cancer, and Doug Gladstone in Maryland, dying from liver cancer, spending his last days at home. His wife of 25 years tells about what she sees as a 'typical hospice experience.' The youngest daughters of Peggy Sutherland and Merian Frederick talk about their mothers' hastened deaths – one sanctioned by law and the other illegal. Each shares riveting personal stories about their loved ones' final days and the decisions they made. Expert commentary is woven throughout the film to help viewers understand divergent viewpoints: religious, medical, philosophical, legal, and personal."

Lessons for the Living

2010

Produced by: Leslie Koren Shani Hashaviah.

Directed by: Lily Henderson.

"Lessons for the Living reveals a unique subculture of Hospice volunteers as they reflect on their experiences and philosophies of life and death. Among them, a teenager escapes from the drama of high school, a hard-edged corporate lawyer searches for meaning and a terminally ill woman faces her own death with unexpected humor and grace."

LIFE Before Death

2016

81 Minutes

Produced by: Moonshine Movies.

Developed in part with the Lien Foundation's "Life Before Death Campaign."

Developed with the assistance of Screen Australia and Film Victoria, and supported by the Lance Armstrong Foundation.

" 'LIFE Before Death' is a multi-award winning documentary series that asks the fundamental question underpinning our mortality. This beautifully filmed journey takes us to 11 countries as we follow the remarkable health care professionals battling the sweeping epidemic of pain that threatens to condemn one in every ten of us to an agonizing and shameful death. Through the eyes of patients and their families we discover the inherent humanity that empowers the best of us to care for those beyond cure. This is an intimate hopeful and life-affirming collection of stories about living well and dying better, advocating for making the most of every moment in our life before death."

The objective of the Lien Foundation's "LIFE Before Death Campaign" is to dismantle the taboos surrounding Death & Dying by encouraging people to openly talk about Death and place the concept of dying in a more positive, empowering light. Life Before Death Campaign hopes to break the silence surrounding end-of-life issues, raise awareness about hospice palliative care, and improve care for the dying.

" 'LIFE Before Death' clips are freely available to any pain, palliative care, hospice and end of life health professionals around the world to download here and use for training and advocacy.

Live and Let Die

2002

34 Minutes

Produced by: Journey Man Productions

"On average, at least 10 terminally ill people legally die by euthanasia every day in Holland – a figure that would provoke outrage and controversy in most societies. The Dutch claim that doctor assisted suicide is already widely practiced throughout the West, but they just don't acknowledge it. "In other countries they don't talk about it – we do," says Dr Aycke Smook. It is the Dutch policy of tolerance that has allowed euthanasia to, gain broad support. However, unease remains about what the Dutch have done, even amongst those who believe euthanasia should be an option. They are concerned that unless society shows more compassion, the elderly and infirm may begin to feel forced towards euthanasia for lack of alternatives. "We should be very careful not to talk about euthanasia as a normal way to end your life," Clemence Ross of the Christian Democrats.

Living Old

55 Minutes

"With 35 million elderly people in America, "the old, old" — those over 85 — are now considered the fastest growing segment of the U.S. population. While medical advances have enabled an unprecedented number of Americans to live longer and healthier lives, this new longevity has also had unintended consequences. For millions of Americans, living longer also means serious chronic illness and a protracted physical decline that can require an immense amount of care, often for years and sometimes even decades. Yet just as the need for care is rising, the number of available caregivers is dwindling. With families more dispersed than ever and an overburdened healthcare system, many experts fear that we are on the threshold of a major crisis in care. Love and Cancer at 27

2015

6 Minutes

Allen Chou was just 27 when he was diagnosed with a brain tumor. His girlfriend, Linda Sim, was 25. We usually think of death and dying as problems for the elderly. Usually, when a couple needs to make decisions about how to spend their last days together, they are late in life and can look back on decades of memories. Allen and Linda had only been together for a few years, and though they weren't kids anymore, they were both young at heart. Linda keeps a video of him singing and dancing to Justin Bieber. When they saw a preview for The Fault in Our Stars, a film about two young people with cancer, Linda saw herself and Allen in the characters. "I was like, oh my God," Linda says. "It just reminds me so much of our journey together." It wasn't long before Allen's doctor gave them terrible news: He had only weeks to live. Linda climbed into his hospital bed, and they made a decision about how to spend the time they had left together. "I was hoping for a miracle, but ... you have to be rational," she said. You can see what they decided to do in the digital film.

MOLST: Honoring Patient Preferences

32 Minutes

"The Role of MOLST in New York State helps guide professionals through the MOLST process. It educates healthcare providers and first responders about the MOLST program and instructs physicians and other medical personnel on how to properly complete the form. MOLST, the Medical Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment is an end-of-life care program for New York State and a nationally-recognized POLST paradigm program. MOLST is based on effective communication of patient wishes, documentation of medical orders on a brightly colored form, and a promise by health care professionals to honor these wishes."

Steps 6 & 7: Completing the MOLST Form, from the 8-Step MOLST Protocol

Dr. George Giokas uses Steps 6-7 of the 8-Step MOLST Protocol to complete the New York MOLST Form for a patient with his family. The discussion addresses choices related to many aspects of end-of-life care including: resuscitation, intubation & mechanical intubation, feeding tubes, IV fluids, and antibiotics. Step 6 & 7 are: 6. Use MOLST to guide choices and finalize patient/family wishes. 7. Complete and sign the MOLST form. Develop a care plan that supports the patient's decisions.

MOLST Form: Review & Renew (Step 8 of the 8-Step MOLST Protocol)

See Dr. George Giokas walk a patient's family through the New York MOLST Form. In this clip he talks about the Review & Renewal section of the MOLST form and explains its use to a patient's family after their father had a massive stroke. He also reflects back on what the family is experiencing and wraps up the conversation with the hospice care plan to support the MOLST decisions.

MOLST Form: Feeding Tube & IV Fluids

See Dr. George Giokas walk a patient's family through the New York MOLST Form. In this clip he discusses "Artificially Administered Fluids & Nutrition" and helps the family choose "no feeding tube" and "no IV fluids" for their elderly father who suffered a massive stroke. The conversation is challenging, as the family members want to make sure their Dad is not hungry or suffering, but at the same time, he always loved to eat and would want careful hand feeding rather than a tube. The family also learns about the challenges with IV fluids - they may not help and could cause their father to become uncomfortable, particularly if fluid is in his lungs.

MOLST Form: Antibiotics

See Dr. George Giokas walk a patient's family through the New York MOLST Form. In this clip he discusses "Antibiotics" and helps the family choose "determine use or limitation of antibiotics when infection occurs" for their elderly father who suffered a massive stroke. The family learns about the challenges with antibiotics - that sometimes simple antibiotics may help, but also that infections are very common towards the end-of-life and that antibiotics also have unintended consequences, including yeast infections or diarrhea.

MOLST Form: Hospitalization

See Dr. George Giokas walk a patient's family through the New York MOLST Form. In this clip he discusses "Future Hospitalization/Transfer" and helps the family choose "do not send to the hospital unless pain or severe symptoms cannot be controlled" for their elderly father who suffered from a massive stroke. The patient's preference is to remain at home and hospice home care will be used to support this decision.

On Our Own Terms: Moyers on Dying

Four part PBS series by journalist Bill Moyers that focuses on end-of-life care in the US

"This film series explores how society can improve the care that is received near the end of one's life. Discussions with terminally ill patients in their final days cover frustrations with health insurance and financial issues. Ethical issues include doctor assisted suicide. Possible avenues of making a better system are looked at. The documentary's website provides a wealth of knowledge on topics such as financial guides to help pay for a family member who is dying, advance care directives, the role of family caregivers, how to be with a dying person and much more. For an intimate look, the website features a personal diary of one patient who is dying detailing what he is going through. In addition to his perspective, there are logs entered from his personal friend and nurse as well."

1. Living with Dying

86 minutes

A pediatrician becomes a patient. A sufferer of Lou Gehrig's disease, communicating her treatment wishes through eye movements. Through frank interviews, Moyers exposes the complicated forces behind choices about death.

2. A Different Kind of Care

86 minutes

Our cultural attitudes towards suffering are sometimes used as a rationale to withhold medications--attitudes that palliative-care physicians hope to change in order to make dying less frightening and less painful.

3. A Death of One's Own

86 minutes

This episode turns an eye to the caregivers, both professional and personal, as they weigh a terminal person's wishes against their own beliefs and responsibilities. Moyers also converses with patients who wish to hasten death to reduce their suffering.

4. A Time to Change

86 minutes

The Balm of Gilead project puts the comfort and care of a hospice into a hospital setting, providing dignified, loving treatment for indigent patients. There, the caregivers help find financial resources for the uninsured and support family members.

Palliative Care, a Different Voice in Healthcare: Timothy Ihrig at TEDxDesMoines

13.29 minutes

Healthcare expenditure is the biggest threat to America's economy, due to an aging population and a system in which physicians are often paid based on what they do to their patients, rather than fostering a patient's overall quality of life. Dr. Timothy Ihrig explains the benefits of palliative care that prioritizes a patient's personal values and navigates a serious illness from diagnosis to death with dignity and compassion.

Palliative Care from Diagnosis to Death

Produced by: Primary Palliative Care Research Group

"Many people still associate palliative care with care in the terminal stage of cancer, and patients with cancer remain more likely to receive it than those with other illnesses. It is often delayed until the last weeks or days of life once the illness is advanced and disease focused treatments are no longer effective. However, late palliative care is a missed opportunity to do better for patients, families, and health services. Scott Murray, professor of primary palliative care at the University of Edinburgh, and colleagues set out a rationale for early palliative care based on the three typical trajectories of functional decline towards the end of life (rapid, intermittent, and gradual)."

Quality of Death, End-of-Life Care in America: Inside Out

Produced by: Anna Bensted, Inside Out, WBUR Boston.

"In this documentary Gotbaum follows several patients in their last months as they confront some of the most difficult decisions of their lives – whether they should pursue aggressive and sometimes painful medical treatments that may extend survival or focus on how to maintain the best quality of life in their final months. She reports on how trends in the American healthcare system influence their decisions and she talks with family members who are often the ones pushing for aggressive treatments."

Documentary Films about Dying in Prison

Fault Lines Dying Inside: Elderly in Prison

Produced by: AlJazeeraEnglish

Directed by: Josh Rushing

"The US' massive prison population is getting older. Long sentences that were handed out decades ago are catching up with the American justice system. Prisons across the country are dedicating entire units just to house the elderly. During difficult economic times, the issue has hit a crisis point. Estimates are that locking up an older inmate costs three times as much as a younger one. How are prisons dealing with this issue? Who are the prisoners that are turning gray behind bars? Josh Rushing gains exclusive and unprecedented access to jails and prisons across the country to tell the story."

Angola Prison Hospice: Opening the Door

Produced by: Open Society Institute Center on Crime, Communities & Culture and the Project on Death in America

Directed by: Edgar Barens

"Half of the 5,000 inmates at the maximum-security Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola are serving life sentences, and it is estimated that 85 percent of them will grow old and die there. Edgar Barens's documentary examines one of the nation's first prison-based hospice programs, a program that notably incorporates inmate volunteers into the care of other dying inmates."

One Last Shot

Produced and Directed by: Lisa R. Cohen.

Produced by: Lightworks Pictures in association with KPI, The Oprah Winfrey Network Original Documentaries.

Narration by: Forest Whitaker

" 'One Last Shot' takes viewers inside Louisiana's maximum security prison at Angola, where the average sentence is more than 90 years. The prisoners within its walls are the worst of the worst—rapists, kidnappers and murderers. With prison sentences so long, 85 percent will never again live in the outside world. Instead, they will grow old and die in Angola. "One Last Shot" documents an extraordinary hospice program where hardened criminals care for their dying fellow inmates. In doing so, they embark on a journey that may end in personal rehabilitation.

Prison Terminal

Produced and Directed by: Edgar Barens.

" 'Prison Terminal' is a moving cinema verité documentary that breaks through the walls of one of America's oldest maximum security prisons to tell the story of the final months in the life of a terminally ill prisoner and the trained hospice volunteers—they themselves prisoners—who care for him. The film draws from footage shot over a six-month period behind the walls of the Iowa State Penitentiary entering the personal lives of the prisoners as they build a prison-based, prisoner-staffed hospice program from the ground up. 'Prison Terminal' demonstrates the fragility, as well as the holistic benefits, of a prison-based, prisoner-staffed hospice program and provides a fascinating and often poignant account of how the hospice experience can profoundly touch even the forsaken lives of the incarcerated."

Served Out: Aging and Dying behind Bars

Produced and Directed by: Tim Gruber

" 'Served Out: Aging and Dying Behind Bars' documents a world that is made up of inmates that are weathered beyond their years. Many of these men struggle with simple tasks, like remembering the date, feeding themselves or even leaving their bed. Beyond the loss of their physical and mental independence many fight with keeping their hope alive. Forgiveness, hope and a sense of independence are not easily found behind bars. "Hope is all we have. We have to keep some kind of hope if we don't we'll surely perish," said inmate Thomas Jones of coming to terms with a life behind bars."

“The story centers around George (Kevin Kline), an architect who decides to build a house on his family's property after he receives a terminal diagnosis. The primary conflict in this story is between George and his teenage son Sam (Hayden Christensen), who eventually heal their estranged relationship by working together on the house. The building of the house throughout the movie serves as a metaphor for finding meaning and purpose at the end of life. Since the father-son relationship is central to this film, Life As a House can appeal to both men and women and is suitable for a younger audience, as well (teenage and up). The movie teaches us about the opportunities for transformation that dying can offer and opens up possibilities for a discussion of how to live your life with meaning.”

An Early Frost (1985) – Gena Rowlands, Ben Gazzara, Aidan Quinn (dir. John Erman). Emmy-award winning script about son who tells his parents that he is gay—and dying of AIDS.

Do You Remember Love (1985) – Joanne Woodward, Richard Kiley, Geraldine Fitzgerald (dir. Jeff Bleckner). Much-praised story of college professo with Alzheimer’s Disease.

The Ultimate Solution of Grace Quigley (1985) – Katharine Hepburn, Nick Nolte (dir. Anthony Harvey). Black comedy of New York seniors employing a mafia hit man to kill them quickly.

Dead Ringers (1988) – David Cronenberg

*My Left Foot (1989) – Jim Sheridan

*A Woman’s Tale (1991) – Sheila Florance (dir. Paul Cox). Australian drama about 78-year-old woman afflicted with cancer who is determined to have “a good death.” (Florance died from her cancer two days after winning Australian Academy Award.

Dying Young (1991) – Julia Roberts, Campbell Scott (dir. Joel Schumacher). A 28-year-old man dying of leukemia hires young woman who undertakes to teach him “the meaning of life” before he dies.

My Life (1993) – Michael Keaton, Nicole Kidman (dir. Bruce Joel Rubin). Dying man videotapes his last days.

New Age (1994) – Judy Davis, Peter Weller (dir. Michael Tolkin). Complex story of self-deliverance and assisted suicide between two thirty-something “yuppies”. Terminal illness is not the cause but rather their exhaustion of life’s illusions.

The Last Supper (1994) – Ken McDougall, Jack Nichol森, Daniel MacIvor (dir. Cynthia Roberts). Chris is a dancer dying of AIDS. He has chosen euthanasia to end his suffering. With the assistance of his lover Val and his doctor, he surrounds himself in his last hours with everything that made his life special and creates his ultimate work of art by choreographing his own death.

The English Patient (1996) – Ralph Fiennes, Kristin Scott Thomas (dir. Anthony Mingella). Oscar Best Picture is a magnificent movie of love and war. Particularly interesting to supporters of choice in dying is that, when close to the end of the story, the nurse quietly administers euthanasia to this dying patient at his request.

It's My Party (1996) – Eric Roberts, Gregory Harrison (dir. Randal Kleiser). Man dying of AIDS and calls all his friends to have a party on his last night alive. Fine drama and dialogue — and it refers in passing to the book 'Final Exit'— but no one should expect to die so long after taking an overdose of drugs.

Critical Care (1997) – Director: Sidney Lumet. The film is a satire about American medicine, based on the novel by Richard Dooling and stars James Spader, Kyra Sedgwick, Anne Bancroft, Helen Mirren, Jeffrey Wright, and Albert Brooks.

Igby Goes Down (2002) – Kieran Culkin, Claire Danes, Susan Sarandon (dir. Burr Steers). The main story is about a brilliant teenager who rebels and flunks out of everything. The opening and closing are remarkable scenes of two brothers helping their terminally ill mother to die with the aid of drugs and a plastic bag. Probably a first for showing this action in Hollywood.

The Hours (2002) – Nicole Kidman, Julianne Moore, Ed Harris (dir. Stephen Daldry). Story of three women who are profoundly affected by Virginia Wolf's novel, 'Mrs. Dalloway'. This excellent film has, as its undercurrent, the reasons for a suicide, an attempted suicide, and a rational suicide. Kidman won an Oscar for her portrayal of Virginia Wolf who drowns herself to escape advancing madness. Moore is the city housewife, bored and confused, who nearly commits suicide. Harris plays the over-the-hill New York poet with advanced AIDS who can no longer bear to live and allows himself to fall to his death out of a window. Screenplay by David Hare from the novel by Michael Cunningham. It helps to have read the Pulitzer Prize novel first.

Talk to Her (2002) – Javier Camara, Rosario Flores (dir. Pedro Almodovar). Emotionally charged drama about the intense friendship between a writer and a male nurse who are both caring for coma-stricken women. Spanish, with subtitles.

The Event (2003) – Parker Posey, Olympia Dukakis, Sarah Polley (Dir. Thom Fitzgerald). An intense relationship drama that takes the form of a mystery, The Event centers around a series of unexplained deaths that occur among the gay community in New York's fashionable Chelsea district. Nick, a district attorney investigating the most recent case, a suspicious, apparent assisted suicide, and her interviews with friends and family of the deceased trigger extensive and intricately interwoven flashbacks that reveal surprising facts about the man's life and death.

Inside I'm Dancing (2004) – Damien O'Donnell

Planta 4a (2004) – Antonio Mercero

Million Dollar Baby (2004) – Hilary Swank, Clint Eastwood, Morgan Freeman (dir. Clint Eastwood). Highly acclaimed by the critics, who nevertheless ignore the 'message' aspect. Despite its inappropriate title and boxing ring background, the underlying theme of this film is assisted suicide and the soul-searching which precedes it. Fine acting all round. Won Oscars.

The Secret Life of Words (2005) – Isabel Coixet

The Death of Mr Lazarescu (2005) – Cristi Puiu

Away from Her (2006) – Sarah Polley

Il y a longtemps que je t'aime (2008) – Philippe Claudel

Guzaarish (2010) – Hrithik Roshan, Aishwarya Rai (dir. Sanjay Leela Bhansali). A paralyzed magician/radio D.J. files a petition in court seeking permission to end his life. This was filmed before withdrawing of life support finally became legal in India (by court decision) in March 2011. In Hindi with English subtitles.

Biutiful (2010) – Alejandro Inárritu

A Simple Life (2011) – Ann Hui

Contagion (2011) – Steven Soderbergh

The Eye of the Storm (2011) – Fred Schepisi

Intouchables (2011) – Olivier Nakache, Eric Toledano

Hemlock Society (2012) – Fictional. The plot revolves around a man who runs a school called "Hemlock Society" which teaches aspirants how to successfully commit suicide. He develops a bond with one of its students, a depressed and dejected woman, and what follows is an unforgettable and life-changing journey for both. In Bengali.

Side Effects (2013) – Steven Soderbergh

*I Am Breathing (2013) – Directed by Emma Davie and Morag McKinnon. Story of Scotsman Neill Platt dying of ALS with courage and humor.

Honey (Miele) (2014) - Valeria Golino. Fictional story of a young Italian woman who commutes between Mexico and Rome carrying drugs by which terminally ill people can end their lives. Then she has a problem client who is merely tired of life. In Italian with English subtitles. 96 min.

Un voyage - A Journey (2014) - Director and writer: Samuel Benchetrit. Story of a couple who decide on assisted suicide and travel to Switzerland. (in French). 87 min.

The Farewell Party (2014) - Directors: Tal Granit and Sharon Maymon. An Israeli drama film about the use of a euthanasia device. 92 min.

Made for TV Dramatic Movies

* Based On A True Story

When The Time Comes (1987) – ABC-TV. Brad Davis, Bonnie Redelin (prod. Sherry Lansing). Fictional but well-portrayed assisted suicide of dying woman.

*Murder or Mercy (1987) – NBC-TV. Robert Young. Story of Roswell Gilbert’s mercy-killing of his wife who had Alzheimer’s.

*The Right To Die (1987) – NBC-TV. Racquel Welch. Woman with ALS wants disconnection from life support.

Longtime Companion (1990) – PBS American Playhouse. Campbell Scott. Bruce Davison, Patrick Cassidy (dir. Norman René). Moving and witty script by playwright Craig Lucas depicting the growth of AIDS among gay men in New York. Davison nominated for Oscar for Best Supporting Actor.

*Last Wish (1992) – ABC TV. Maureen Stapleton, Patti Duke. Betty Rollin’s story of assisting her mother’s suicide.

*The Switch (1993) – Gary Cole, Craig T. Nelson (dir. Bobby Roth). Larry McAfee is a man paralyzed and dependant on a ventilator. Angry and frustrated with a system that drained him of his insurance money and leaves him in one nursing home after another, he sues for the right to have a switch installed on his ventilator that will allow him to turn the machine off. He wins that “right”. This is an unusually complex (for TV) portrayal of the issues of disability and “quality of life”.

*You Don't Know Jack (2010) – HBO TV Movie. Al Pacino plays Dr. Jack Kevorkian in the 1990s who defied Michigan law by assisting the suicides of more than a hundred persons. Support comes from his sister, a lab tech, the local Hemlock Society president, and a lawyer. The child of survivors of the Armenian genocide interviews applicants: his sister video tapes them. He assembles a device allowing a person to initiate a three-chemical intravenous drip. The local D.A., the governor, and the Legislature respond. He's single-minded about giving dying individuals the right to determine how their lives will end. He wants the Supreme Court to rule but his legal approach is mistaken. 134 min.

On Being: What Matters in the End—Featuring Atul Gawande

“What does a good day look like?” That question — when asked of both terminally-ill and healthy people — has transformed Atul Gawande’s practice of medicine. A citizen physician and writer, Gawande is on the frontiers of human agency and meaning in light of what modern medicine makes possible. For the millions of people who have read his book Being Mortal, he’s also opened new conversations about the ancient human question of death and what it might have to do with life.

NPR Life Kit: How to be a Better Caregiver When a Loved One Gets Sick

None of us is prepared to be caregivers — the role is thrust upon us. More than 40 million Americans are caring for an elderly parent or loved one. Here are six tips to make the caregiving burden more sustainable:

- Accept help, and don't be afraid to ask for it.
- Break down caregiving tasks into bite-sized solutions.
- Don't tell your loved one what to do. Ask about the quality of life they want and how you can get them there.
- Be an empowered medical advocate for your loved one.
- Get your legal ducks in order so you can focus on your relationship.
- Make sure to take care of yourself, too.

Many of us believe we know how we’d choose to die. We have a sense of how we’d respond to a diagnosis of an incurable illness. Hear the story of one family’s decades-long conversation about dying. They found that the people we are when death is far in the distance may not be the people we become when death is near.

Comfort Zone Camp

Comfort Zone Camp is a nonprofit 501(c) 3 bereavement camp that transforms the lives of children who have experienced the death of a parent, sibling, or legal guardian. The free camps include confidence building programs and age-based support groups that break the emotional isolation grief often brings. Comfort Zone Camps are offered to children 7-17, and are held year-round across the Country.

Getting Started in Palliative Care

There are many ways to start a career in palliative and end-of-life care.

Inform yourself

You may begin by informing yourself about these topics and about the roles of palliative social work. A good overview is an introductory chapter on this topic:

Berkman, C., Stein, G. L., & Glajchen, M. (2018). Palliative and end-of-life care. In J. C. Heyman & E. Congress (Eds.), Health Care and Social Work: Practice, Policy and Research: Springer.

This is available at the Fordham University Library Research Guide on Palliative and End-of-Life Care (see page 1). These two books are also excellent resources for learning more.

Altilio, T., & Otis-Green, S. (Eds.). (2011). Oxford textbook of palliative social work (1st ed.): Oxford University Press.

Sumser, B., Leimena, M., & Altilio, T. (2019). Palliative care: A guide for health social workers. New York: Oxford University Press.

There are also many excellent videos available online, many of which are listed in this guide.

Join SWHPN

Join the Social Work Hospice and Palliative Care Network. This is the professional organization for palliative care and hospice social workers. There is a student membership rate.

Attend Conferences

Find local conferences in your immediate area or region. These are usually one day or part of a day. They are an excellent way to learn more and to meet social workers and other professionals working in palliative and hospice care.

If you are able to attend a national conference, that is also an excellent opportunity to learn a lot and network. These conferences are usually two or more days, although you can attend part of the conference. They are usually located in a different city each year. The SWHPN Annual Meeting is held in March. You can learn about the location and exact dates at www.SWHPN.org. Many of the organizations listed in this guide also hold annual conferences. Depending on your interests and the location of the conference, you may choose to attend a national conference.

Join the Listserv

The SW-PALL-EOL listserv is an excellent way to become immersed in issues of importance to palliative and hospice social workers. See page 1 of this Guide for instructions on joining the listserv.

Volunteer

Consider volunteering in a setting that serves seriously ill persons. Many hospices welcome volunteers as part of their program. You might also consider volunteering at community-based organizations that serve individuals with cancer, such as Gilda's club, or at a nursing home, or other organizations where you live.

Get a Mentor

If you are a SWHPN member, you may request to be assigned to palliative or hospice social worker through the Mentoring program. Information on this is available at the SWHPN website. It might be also be possible to find a mentor in your area, or to at least make contact with a palliative or hospice social worker in your area to meet and ask their advice relevant to the area in which you live.

Continuing Education

Take one or more continuing education classes on palliative and hospice care. Fordham University Graduate School of Social Service offers many different classes in the Palliative Care Sequence.

SWHPN also offers a series of continuing education classes designed to help palliative social workers prepare for the Certification Exam, but you may find these classes to be well-suited to your interests and needs.

Certificate Programs

There are some excellent certificate programs for persons who want an extensive program. These programs are listed in this Guide.

If you are currently an MSW or BSW student

Take one or more electives in this subject. Many programs have a course that covers death, dying, grief, loss, and bereavement. Very few programs have a dedicated course on palliative care, but you might find a course on social work in health care settings that would include some of this content. You might find a course on this topic in another department in your university.

Use assignments in any of your courses as a way to become more knowledgeable about palliative and end-of-life care.

Request a field placement on a palliative care team, in medical center working on a service for seriously ill patients (e.g., oncology), in a dialysis center, or in hospice. There may be other community-based organizations that provide services to seriously ill persons.

If you are applying to an MSW or BSW program

Consider applying to a program that has a specialization in palliative care (there are three of these – all in New York City) or in psychosocial oncology (there is one at the Kent School, University of Louisville, and one at the University of Washington). If one of these programs is not feasible for you, examine the schools that you are considering to see which have electives and specializations in closely related areas, read the faculty webpages to determine whether there is someone on the faculty with an interest in palliative or end-of-life care. Contact this faculty person to ask them about opportunities in this program for you to gain experience in this field. You might also contact someone in the Field Department to inquire about the possible field placements working with seriously ill persons.
